Dear Dr. Henney

Please use your power to ban the use of antibiotics in animals to promote their growth, when those same antibiotics are used in humans to treat serious illnesses. I do not buy anything that I can possibly avoid that has had hormones used in the products, such as milk, meat, etc. I currently buy these hormone free products at stores such as Whole foods, and Fruitful Yield. But the price of such products would surely be more reasonable if there was more competition from others who do not use these in the raising of their livestock. This is a very important issue, and I hope that the FDA follows the European Nations example. Thanks for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Annette Messina
